TORONTO BUILDING NAMED FOR EDUCATION PIONEER: ITSHE MEYER KOROLNEK

TORONTO FLOODED BY NAZI PROPAGANDA

Obscene Leaflets Spread by Mail

DEMAND ACTION

By ALBERT GOLDMAN, CJN Staff Reporter

Her Majesty's Mail is being abused again by antisemitic underground groups active in Ontario who are flooding the mail with the most obnoxious, almost pornographic Nazi newspapers and pamphlets.

● The Canadian Jewish News has investigated thoroughly these activities and mailings. It appears that propaganda literature of Nazi content, which previously has been mailed from Sweden, England and New York, now is sent from points in Ontario.

VICIOUS WRITINGS

The most recent documents in the possession of The Canadian Jewish News are the viciously antisemitic American publications, The Thunderbolt (subtitled: The While Man's Viewpoint) and Common Sense, the latter disguising itself as "America's newspaper against Communism."

The last issues of these vile publications contain the following "thoughts":

● "God did not make a mistake when He made us white and when He made the Negro black. If God had only wanted one race, He would have only created one race...."

JEWS, MONGRELIZERS

Further: "....The Jews and other mongrelizers lie when they say that color is the only difference between White and Negroes. There are many differences more than color.

....Only truth can solve the race problem,..not Jew propaganda that would destroy both races in the mongrel pot. The Jews are trying to destory both races by race mixing.

● "It would be much easier for the Jew-Communists to rule a mongrel America, but we Christians will defeat them.

DEMAND ACTION

Some of the leaflets contain the addresses of the senders — in New Jersey and London, England. But no Canadian address is available.

The recent flood of this obnoxious "literature" has disturbed many Canadians, Jews and non-Jews alike. They wonder why no measures are being contemplated to stop this abuse of mail privileges.

Gasner Reports To Ontario Government

Israel Becoming Important Customer Of Our Province

The state of Israel is becoming now an important customer of Canada, particularly of the province of Ontario, Meyer W. Gasner, chairman of Central Region of the Canadian Jewish Congress, told The Canadian Jewish News.

Mr. Gasner, who also is president of International Auto Parts, just returned from a brief visit to Israel as a member of a two-man special delegation of the government of Ontario, to deal with Canadian imports to Israel. He said that Israel, which is ordering goods and products from this province, is becoming one of our important export countries. The other member of the delegation representing the automotive industry is Mr. William Gordon of Kent Steel.

The Ontario government (Department of Economics, Trade and Industry) is interested in promoting more exports to the Middle East, Africa and other overseas areas. The government of Ontario was very much pleased to receive the report from Messrs. Gasner and Gordon on the perspectives for Ontario industry exports to the state of Israel which, according to Mr. Gasner, is slowly emerging as a little industrial power.

As an industrialist, Mr. Gasner was quite impressed by the growth of the heavy industry in Israel, especially by the development of the automotive industry. He visited the Kaiser-Milan plant in Haifa and other production centers, and noticed with satisfaction that about 50% of the components of cars assembled in Israel are manufactured by Israelis there.

Israel's products are becoming more and more popular, as are Canadian imports in which Mr. Gasner has interested Israeli buyers and manufacturers.

Cemetery Desecrated

Paris, (JCNS) — The Jewish cemetery at Belfort, Alsace, was found desecrated on Tuesday. Several tombstones had been pulled down and damaged and graves trampled. The police had no difficulty in arresting the perpetrators — three young hooligans who seem to have committed their act while drunk. They were later released on bail pending their trial soon.

Record Attendance Expected At Eitz Chaim Dedication

A record attendance is expected at the formal dedication of the new building of the Eitz Chaim Schools, which will be held on Sunday, November 17 at 1:00 p.m., at 1 Viewmount Avenue. At these exercises, the new school edifice will officially be named and dedicated in tribute to a prominent pioneer in the cause of Jewish education and one of the original founders of the Etiz Chaim Schools, Itsheh Meyer Korolnek.

Outstanding civic, communal, religious and educational leaders have already accepted invitations to attend and participate in this significant milestone in the educational history of Toronto.

"At this event," it was announced by Harry P. Botnick, dedication chairman, "plaques and citations will be presented in connection with the formal dedication and the finalization of honorial and memorial units which will be dedicated that afternoon. Among the facilities to be dedicated officially at this historic ceremony will be: auditorium, gymnasium, library, kindergarten, science room, home economics room, school classrooms, medical room, manual training room, playground, and other units."

Founded approximately a half century ago, the Eitz Chaim Schools have paralleled in their development the history and growth of Jewish education in the Toronto community. The first permanent building was the Talmud Torah Eitz Chaim located on D'Arcy Street. Since that year, 1917, additional structures were subsequently erected to accomodate the many students who sought a formal Jewish education which included the studies of the Hebrew language, the Bible, commentaries, the Mishna, the Talmud, religious customs, ceremonies and laws of the Jewish religion.

In 1945 the Eitz Chaim Schools expanded their traditional Talmud Torah program to include a complete and modern day school pattern of education which synthesized an intensive and comprehensive Hebrew training and scholarship, with a complete and impressive curriculum of all required secular studies. In 1958 the Tanenbaum building was erected in memory of Mr. and Mrs. Abraham Tanenbaum who were among the founders of the Eitz Chaim Schools. This structure served to increase the facilities and accomodations for many additional students of the schools.

In connection with the formal dedication scheduled for November 17, Mr. I. M. Korolnek, guest of honour, stated, "The founding of the Eitz Chaim Schools 48 years ago inaugurated one of the earlies educational institutions to offer a systematic program of Hebrew study in Toronto. Through the years, our schools have expanded and enriched their facilities to include currently, in addition to specially intensive and comprehensive courses in the Talmud, an exemplary day school with its special plan of study, offering a rich integrated bi-cultural and bi-lingual program of high standards.

"The Eitz Chaim Schools command the wide and full support of the entire Jewish community. The formal dedication of its new school building on November 17th testifies not only to its progress over the years but to the impact and inspiration exerted by these schools upon the cultural life of our community. It is indeed my privilege to have been among the founders who initiated this unique blueprint for a modern and progressive education."

Paris To See "Deputy"

Paris, (JCNS) "The Representative", Rolf Hochhuth's controversial play, is to be performed here at the Athenee Theatre, in a version adapted by Jorge Semprum, the Spanish-born writer. Semprum was recently awarded the Formentor Prize for his book, "The Last Journey", an autobiographical novel dealing with his deportation to a Nazi concentration camp.

It is expected that the play will open on December 15. The director of the Athenee is Mlle. Francoise Spira, the well-known Jewish theatrical director.

KRISTALLNACHT

That night of November 9-10, 1938, all Germany was ablaze by the glare and fire of what became known as the Crystal Night. On that accursed night, light became the symbol of darkness. For then it was that the Nazis defied the conscience of the civilized world — and conquered.

* * *

Upon the order of the democratically elected Hitler government, the Nazi Stormtroopers, aided by many citizens, set fire to the synagogues in Germany, Austria and the occupied province of Sudetenland in Czechoslovakia. In all, somewhat more than 400 synagogues were destroyed.

However the cultured Germans of that period did not stop at burning synagogues. In some places it was carnival time and, as in the Middle Ages, the assault against the God of Israel went parallel to the plundering of businesses belonging to Jews, the destruction of private homes, mass arrests of thousands and despatching them to concentration camps. Also a number of Jews were murdered.

In their utter defiance of international law, order and civilized tradition, the German government cynically imposed upon the German Jewish community a fine of one billion marks for the assassination of Ernest vom Rath, a minor German diplomat stationed in Paris, who was killed by a Jewish teenager, Herschel Greenspan.

* * *

I repeat: Kristallnacht was the first Nazi victory over the image of God in man. The Nazis challenged the last vestiges of human conscience in their preparation for the bloodiest of all wars. Yet the great civilized nations of the West, the great Christian nations, answered: We are not our brother's keeper.

The wildest pogroms, the efficiently organized persecutions of a helpless minority (one percent of the total population of Germany) were considered "an internal matter" of the Third Reich. Suddenly the most bestial killings since Cain liquidated Abel were given an elegant name — the Jewish problem in Germany. For the gangsters comprised the government of one of the foremost civilized nations in the world. And the German people watched, with callousness and indifference, this spectacle of a savage assault against their own neighbors — men, women and children who lived between the Rhine and the Elbe more than 2,000 years and considered themselves Germans.

* * *

Upon two occasions did Hitler successfully prove to those Germans who feared repercussions from abroad that conscience would not play any role in international relations and politics. The first was the reoccupation of the Rhineland in 1936. At that time the generals warned Hitler that France, more powerful than Germany, would not stand for it; she would reoccupy the Rhineland if German troops marched in. Hitler bet the generals — and won. The second occasion was the infamous Kristallnacht.

* * *

Now, twenty-five years later, when we recall this horrible sight of the kindled structures of the synagogues of Cologne, Berlin and Munich, we ask: Was it only the Germans who were at fault? Did we, at that time, understand the writing on the wall? And now, a quarter-of-a-century later, have we learned the meaning of the old injunction, thou shalt not stand idle by the blood of thy brother?

Today Jewish status in other parts of the world, in other countries, are threatened by cynical rulers. Are we prepared to act in their defense, or do we continue to satisfy our conscience with editorial protests and a sigh from a distant relative?

We have no right to speak on the anniversary of Kristallnacht nor mark this sad event unless we determine courageously to do what we have shied from that fateful night.

CJN Interviews Rome Chief Rabbi

Calendar Reform Danger For Non-Christian Religions

Rome, (JCNS) — "The Ecumenical Council is not opposed to various initiatives for establishing a new perpetual civil calendar provided the seven-day week, safeguarding Sunday and the regular succession of weeks, remains intact."

This is one of the amendments to chapter five of the Sacred Liturgy Schema, dealing with the liturgical year approved on Tuesday by the Council of Fathers. The vote was 2154 in favour, 21 against. Sixteen others voted in favour but with reservations and 2 votes were not valid.

The entire Liturgy Schema now awaits a full vote, but a reversal of Tuesday's vote on chapter five is most unlikely.

Athelstic Reform Feared

Bishop Francis Zauner, of Insbruck, Austria, who presented the amendment, stated that there was danger that if the Church did not act, civil authorities might reform the calendar according to an atheistic system. Therefore, the Council should pronounce itself for the common good.

It is understood that Bishop Zauner was referring to some Communist calendar reform proposals which suggested five-day weeks, eliminating Sunday.

Council sources stated that the year be composed of four equal quarters, each of 13 weeks. All recent perpetual calendar schemes involved the insertion of a blank day, which was unacceptable to Jewry because it would disrupt the sanctification of the seventh day, hence the apprehension expressed in Jewish circles here following the Council vote.

Jewish Apprehensions

Rabbi Elio Toaff, the Rome Chief Rabbi, told the JCNS correspondent here that "the Council's vote favouring reform of the calendar, has roused apprehension among Jews who, already in 1931, 1949 and 1954, fought within the League of Nations and the United Nations against any reform hampering Sabbath observance.

"A blank day would create serious difficulties to Diaspora Jews who so far could sanctify the seventh day thanks to the five-day working week adopted in most Western countries. We hope that if a reform calendar is adopted, it will acknowledge the Jewish demand of maintaining the seven-day cycle unaltered."

He added: "Our apprehensions, however, are mitigated by the cautiousness of the Council's announcement stressing that a reform of the calendar would be acceptable provided it was agreeable to all concerned."

Rabbi Toaff then emphasised that the Council vote somewhat reversed a previous Vatican stand.

He recalled that when India submitted to Unesco in 1953 a reform proposal he immediately appealed to the Vatican's Deputy Secretary of State, then Monsignor Montini (now Pope Paul) expressing Jewish apprehensions. Monsignor Montini entrusted a representative of the Catholic organisation "Pax Romana" with the task of opposing the Indian proposal. Following its shelving by Unesco, Rabbi Toaff thanked Monsignor Montini for the action "undertaken on instructions from Your Excellency."

Religious experts here believe, however, that a reform of the calendar would take many years because it must be approved by all governments concerned, and probably through the United Nations.

DEVOR, ZELDIN TO COMMUNITY:

Operation Of Continuous Aid Must Be Assured By All

An intensive canvass of trades and professions contributors to Toronto's 1963 United Jewish Appeal will be continued in order to obtain cash payments of pledges to this year's campaign, it was announced by John R. Devor and Samuel Zeldin, chairmen of the Cash Campaign.

The drive is being conducted "in response to urgent requests from overseas agencies for cash to assure continued, unabated operation of their rescue and relief programs".

According to Mr. Devor and Mr. Zeldin, the purpose of the drive is to bring in "every dollar on every pledge made so that we can help meet acutely pressing financial obligations overseas for the relief, rescue and rehabilitation of thousands of Jewish refugees and distressed men, women and children in Israel and other countries."

The statement stresses that needs in those countries have been outrunning the availability of funds, particularly in Israel, where Jewish immigrants have been entering at a record rate for the past 40 months. Their entry has created a giant backlog in housing absorption and social service needs far beyond the capacity of Israel's people to meet without extraordinary financial aid from North American Jews.

"The newcomers entering Israel cannot be turned back", Mr. Simon declared. "But we shall be letting them — and the people of Israel — down if we do not take every step necessary to meet our share of the costs of providing the housing, medical help, education, job retraining and employment which will enable them to become absorbed into the economic and social life of that country."

Mr. Simon pointed out also that "France where 110,000 Algerian Jews have found refuge since 1962, is today a center of increasing need." According to the Joint Distribution Committee, requests for relief by Jewish refugees from Algeria have doubled in the last two months and will quadruple in October. As of now, one in every six repatriated Algerian Jewish families is registered with Jewish welfare agencies. 3,000 families in the Paris region alone. Sharply increased aid requests to Jewish organizations started when the French Government's 12-month repatriation subsidy program began to run out at the end of June.

"What makes the situation urgent," Mr. Simon declared "is the fact that agencies overseas do not have the cash resources in hand to cope with the relief needs that are now multiplying so astronomically".

SISTERHOOD COUNCIL DESIGNATES NOVEMBER 10 "BLITZ DAY FOR BONDS" — Members of Toronto S ynagogue Sisterhoods will be out in force on Sunday, November 10, to participate in what has become a tradition for Sisterhood Council — the annual "Blitz Day for Bond Collections". This vital work of cash collection ensures that Israel will be able to put these funds to work immediately on the urgent development projects now underway in the Negev. Workers will convene at the Israel Bond Office at 9 a.m. on Sunday, Nov. 10, to receive their Collection Kits, and will make their calls for four intensive hours, from 10 a.m. until 2 p.m. Convening the project will be Mrs. Ralph Zamonsky, Sisterhood Council Bond Chairman, and her Co-Chairman Mrs. Charles Appel. Shown here are a group of Sisterhood Bond Chairmen at the planning meeting for Blitz Day held at the home of Mrs. A. Levy. HUMAN RELATIONS

Mother Is Wrong

DR. ROSE N. FRANZBLAU

QUESTION: How does one ease the heartbreak caused by a vicious letter from a daughter?

Relatives tell me to write her again, but I know her crackpot attitude and I cannot humble myself anymore.

She is the oldest, 35, divorced, remarried, and living out West. They have four children.

She has been neurotic all her life, even as a baby, crying all the time.

My other three daughter, all married, live there too. They write and visit us at times. This daughter visited us with her family once. Period. I went to see her once — but never again.

When I didn't hear from her after the birth of her latest child, I phoned, telling her in a mild way that I was worried. She practically screamed at me for being so "unreasonable." I wrote, after she wrote me — pointing out that I know what it is to have four children — but that she has a nice, kind, helpful husband, whereas I hadn't, that SHE can leave the children in the backyard, whereas I had to take them out, so she can't tell me about hard times. The result? Her insulting, abusive letter.

I practically knocked myself out raising her. She was always a handful and a big pain to me when she married the first time.

ANSWER: Babies are not born neurotic. But the way they are handled or mishandled by a troubled or hostile parent, can make them so.

A parent cannot use her age, status, or what she has done for her children as an excuse for making unreasonable demands. Stories of what the parent suffered in order to survive do not make a child feel any better or more appreciative. They only evoke feelings of guilt for being more fortunate, and resentment for being made to feel guilty. The youngster does not feel responsible for the parents' misfortunes, or feel called upon or able to make up for them.

At this happy time in your daughter's life, your call seemed like a demand for consideration of you, rather than a message of love for her. Your follow-up letter telling her how you had to solve your problems all alone, only added validity to that feeling. Implicit also was the message that because of your suffering, her life has been made easier, and that she should show her gratitude to you for all this.

* * *

Sometimes when there is not too good relationship between husband and wife, the mother looks to the new child to make up to her for the disappointments in the marriage. She gives to the child what she does not give to her mate and then expects from the child what her husband withholds from her. Finally in adolescence, the youngster rebels to make up for all the years she dared not tell her mother off.

Your daughter needs to hear what joy her happy marriage has brought you. It cannot help your relationship to be told what an unloving husband you had and what an inconsiderate father he was to her.

If you want her to share her happiness with you, you cannot behave like a deprived orphan who is in competition with her grandchildren for their mother's and attention.

I remember this wine!

Mazel Tov is a wine that will unlock memories. It tastes like the wine you used to sip many years ago at your parents' table.

Mazel Tov tastes like that because it is made like those wines were made. It is made only from Concord grapes grown on the sunny slopes of the Niagara Peninsula. It is a hearty, richly honest wine. A wine that is as natural with a shabbat meal as the chalah, as welcome at a simcha as a handshake.

THOUGHTS ABOUT WEDDINGS

Orthodox Jews looked upon Tuesday as the favorite day for a marriage. When God was creating the world, at the end of the third day He said twice, "It is well." Monday, on the other hand, is unlucky, because He did not say it even once for that day. (The origin of "blue Monday"?)

* * *

Cantor Jacob Lefkowitz of Pittsburgh wants eliminated from the wedding ceremony the love song, "O, Promise Me." The Cantor says he's tired of that song, along with the Mendelssohn and Wagner marches. Instead he suggests the use of Hebraic music, thereby preserving our own culture."

The late Enrico Caruso made a recording of "O, Promise Me" but he objected to its use at his own wedding reception, and for the same reason Cantor Lefkowitz wants it eliminated. The great tenor wanted the music of his own culture, "Mama Mia," and "A Vuchella."

* * *

Contrary to the general impression, "arranged" marriages (through a professional marriage broker or through the machinations of a non-professional aunt), had a remarkable record of success. And the system of the dowry did not do any harm either.

The modern youth who arches his back at the thought of a dowry, is forever trying to do the same thing, the hard way. He wants to marry the boss' daughter. In some of the Asiatic and Middle-Eastern cultures the prospective groom "purchased" his bride, but among the Jews and Western peoples, the bride brought a dowry to the union, a "dot"; in France it was usually in the form of acreage, and in New York it was fitting up the office for the young doctor or lawyer or putting him in business.

* * *

Today the "arranged" marriage is thing or the past. Instead, they meet on the campus, in the office, at the dance, or on a Freedom March. And the dowry is out, too. Today the bride brings to the marriage, not money or property, but an unpaid dental bill for three new caps.

He is also a member of the Zionist Actions Committee and of the Histadrut Council of Israel, and the former Minister of Transport in the Israeli government.

During World Was II, Ben-Aharon was a captain in the British Army. During the post-war struggle for Jewish independence in Palestine he was active in the resistance against British rule and was imprisoned for his activities. He is a well-known author.

FARBAND JUBILEE

IMPORTANT MILESTONE

On Sunday, November 17th, Toronto Jewry will observe an important milestone in the history of the development of its community life. Though the celebration of fifty years Farband-Labor Zionist Order will be feted at O'Keefe Center with a gala Israeli concert, this local observance should not overshadow the wider aspects of this anniversary.

The Farband, as it is known to hundreds of thousands of Jews on the continent, has played an important and positive role in the equation of North American Jewry towards community solidarity, militancy in the area of preserving Jewish culture and uncompromising loyalty to the ideal of the upbuilding of Eretz Israel and for securing the permanence of the Jewish state.

The Farband, as an organization active primarily in the labor and democratic Socialist sphere, deserves special recognition for the role it has played in combating the cosmopolitan anti-national and quasi assimilationist ideas popular in certain Jewish Socialist circles and among trade union leaders during the first decades of this century.

The role of the Farband in this respect is not finished, nor is its task terminated — here in Canada or in the United States. The recent battle by the Farband leaders for the cause of strengthening Jewish Day schools, the only instrument for perpetrating Judaism and Jewish continuity in a non-Jewish environment, again points to the constructive contribution of this Labor-Zionist order towards a healthier community conscious and aware of its duties.

CANADA ISRAEL

TRADE GROWING

At a recent meeting in Toronto, at which the Hon. Yehiel Narkiss, trade commissioner of Israel in Canada for the past three years, was bidden farewell, the respected consul and leaders in Canadian commerce and industry stressed the fact that trade relations between Canada and Israel at this moment are of mutual benefit to both countries. In recent years, Israel has ceased to be a recipient of aid only; it has grown into an important industrial center. And, what is more important, it is now one of Canada's valued customers.

During the three years of tenure of his high position, Mr. Narkiss has brought to this country the dynamism of a top salesman plus the charm and effectiveness of a first rate public relations expert. It cannot be denied that his has been a most beneficial role in the progress noted in the import-export balance sheet between Canada and Israel.

Under the leadership of Mr. S. Barber, the Canada-Israel Chamber of Commerce also has made excellent progress. And now that Mr. Mark A. Levy has assumed the presidency of the Chamber, we feel sure that the good work started by Mr. Sam Steinberg will be continued and that commerce between Israel and Canada will develop without interruption.

As a result of his last trip to Israel, Mr. Meyer W. Gasner, noted Toronto industrialist, also reports that greater prospects are in sight for exports from Canada to Israel. All Canadians will welcome these tidings which not only stress the development of Israel but also prove that Canada is in a position to develop its exports further.

Against this background, we are confident that the Hon. Meir Livnat, who will occupy the post held till now by Mr. Narkiss, will find a climate favorable to still greater achievements for the benefit of both Israel and Canada.

RELIGION IN THE PUBLIC SCHOOL

WE TAKE IT SERIOUSLY

The Rev. Owen Pritchard, writing in the Telegram's Dissent Department makes about as poor a case as possible for the retention of religious education in our public schools. Even his heading "Harold Be Thy Name" symbolizes the weakness of the case. Essentially this is what he says: Let's keep religious (Protestant) instruction in our schools. After all, it does not harm the youngsters and who knows it might benefit them. We cannot possibly fill their heads with any meaningful theological concepts, and also it is absurd to believe that any child would be converted by the smattering of teaching to a religious faith.

The aforementioned, by the way, is merely a paraphrase. Let us look at Mr. Pritchard's own words:

'In my experience, this "entry" of clergymen into school life is taken by the children themselves in a mild way — 30 minutes of a class that is less laborious than arithmetic and less fun than arts and crafts.

The 'religious' effect is nil. As for seizing an opportunity to 'indoctrinate' — can you imagine trying to expound 'regeneration' or 'episcopacy' to a group of youngsters, when it is so evident that few Grade 7 pupils could write the Lord's Prayer or Ten Commandments with accuracy? (I remember one child who wrote, 'Harold be Thy name'.)"

What Mr. Pritchard is saying is: the instruction has little meaning to the pupils, they hardly take it seriously. And therefore no serious objection can be uttered. Were we the ones who should be concerned about the religious state of Christian children, we would find such an argument most objectionable and it would only convince us all the more that for a meaningful religious education the child should be directed to the proper institutions, i.e. the church-sponsored religious school, and not the public school where everything must be diluted to the extent indicated by Mr. Pritchard and absorbed so indifferently.

Propaganda from Moscow

JEWS IN THE USSR

London, (JCNFS). — Institutions and newspapers in the West are being submitted to a steady flow of articles, statistics and various other information about the situation of Soviet Jewry. They emanate from official Soviet sources and they all paint a very reassuring picture. The outside world is told about the existence of Jewish engineers and physicians, writers, painters and agricultural experts. Everybody is happy or, at any rate, leading a normal life. Antisemitism, the reports emphasise, is outlawed under the Soviet Constitution and the whole uproar overseas about the alleged persecution of Soviet Jews was probably engineered by American Jews who wanted to distract attention from their own plight.

These elaborate denials show, as Mr. Averell Harriman has stressed, that the Soviet authorities feel increasingly uncomfortable about their policy towards their Jewish minority — and its effects abroad. This may well have contributed to the decision to ease occasionally the rigid emigration restrictions to permit a few elderly Jews to join their families abroad, which, of course, is to be welcomed. But there has been no major policy change; on the contrary, discriminatory policies are being pursued while the Soviet authorities attempt to counteract the inevitable repercussions abroad by a stream of propaganda.

This, of course, is a futile enterprise. Nobody has denied that there are Jewish engineers and physicians in Russia, or that antisemitism is outlawed under the Soviet Constitution. And nobody has argued that Soviet Jews can do no wrong and that some may have committed criminal offences.

With their heavy emphasis on what is obvious, the Moscow propagandists have not allayed in the slightest degree the widespread fears about the fate of Soviet Jewry. There is a great and painful discrepancy between facts and legal fiction; the fact that the Constitution outlaws antisemitism certainly did not deter Stalin from shooting innocent Jewish writers. It is incontrovertible that Soviet Jews are treated worse than other Russian minorities, that their cultural life is more circumscribed, that many of their synagogues have been closed, matzot-baking prohibited and that the Jews are probably the only religious denomination denied their own country-wide organization.

This policy is undoubtedly intended to make the Jewish communities disappear. Yet, paradoxically, the authorities at the same time do everything in their power to keep the Jewish awareness of the younger generation alive, albeit in a negative way. Why are Jews obliged to declare their faith on their identity cards, thus distinguishing them from their fellow-citizens? And why are many important careers in State and party virtually closed to them?

This policy is not only discriminatory but inconsistent in itself. It has done incalculable harm to Russian Jewry. But it is also a festering sore so far as Soviet prestige abroad is concerned. The Soviet authorities should know that real problems cannot be conjured away by any amount of political legerdemain or improved public relations techniques. They can be solved only by a real change in policy.

The touchstone of the Soviet attitude towards its Jewish minority lies in its relations with Israel. If, as Sir Alec Douglas-Home has suggested, the watershed of East-West relations has been passed and a friendlier atmosphere is emerging, the U.S.S.R. may be obliged to reassess its whole Middle East policy and therewith its attitude not only to Israel but also towards Jewry.

KEEP SMILING

BEFORE AND AFTER

It was hot in the old dusty train. An old Jew sat, wedged opposite a stranger.

"Oy," he exclaimed, for the umpty-ump time, "am I thirsty!"

The stranger fidgeted annoyed.

"What a terrible thrist I have!" repeated the old man.

Again the stranger felt irritated.

"Oy," again said the stranger, "am I thirsty!"

Just then the train stopped at a station. The stranger hurried into the station, got a cup of water, and returned. Thrusting it at the old man he cried, "Here, drink!"

"Thank you," said the old man, and drank.

As the train started up again the stranger settled back to enjoy the peace. But in a moment the quiet was shattered by a mighty sigh.

"Oy, did I have a thirst!"

BOSS

A man's wife kept ordering him around all day long. One day, when some women came calling, she wanted to show off — to show how completely she had control over her husband.

"Schlemiel", she ordered, "get under the table".

Without a word, her husband complied.

"Now, schlemiel, come out!" she commanded.

"I won't, I won't!" he defied her angrily. "I'll show you that I'm still boss in this house!"

Toronto's Sadowski Medal

Abe Posluns Honoured

Abe Posluns, president of the Jewish Home for the Aged and Baycrest Hospital, and chairman of the board of the United Community Fund, was awarded the Ben Sadowski Medal, the highest honor for service to the Toronto Jewish community, at the 26th Annual Meeting of the United Jewish Welfare Fund of Toronto last night at Beth Tzedec Synagogue.

In announcing the award, John D. Fienberg, president of the United Jewish Welfare Fund, stated that Mr. Posluns had been selected "because he has devoted a lifetime of service to both the Jewish and the general community of Toronto."

The Medal has been awarded annually since 1961 in honor of Ben Sadowski, M.B.E., a founder of the United Jewish Welfare Fund and president of New Mount Sinai Hospital in recognition of his outstanding leadership and dedication to communal service.

The guest speaker at the Annual Meeting was Rabbi Arthur J. Lelyveld of Barnert Temple, Cleveland, a former national director of the B'nai B'rith Hillel Foundation. He spoke on "The Future of North American Jewry."

Harold Green also was honored with the Leadership Development Award given annually to a young man who has demonstrated leadership ability. Mr. Green was chairman of the Construction Division in the 1963 United Jewish Appeal of Toronto campaign, and is a member of the executive of the YM-YWHA and the Leadership Development Program of the Welfare Fund.

SERMON FOR THE WEEK

DAILY MIRACLES

For Thy Miracles which are daily with us.

Most people with even an elementary knowledge of the Hebrew Prayer Book will easily recognise the above phrase, which is taken from that beautiful paragraph in the Amidah commencing with the words "We give thanks unto Thee...."

We have given expression to our prayers of petition. We have asked God for the blessings of knowledge, forgiveness of sin, physical health and ample sustenance. We have also besought His help for Israel's national security. And now in His beautiful prayer we reflect for a moment on the things we do already have, on the blessings which we already enjoy; and we thank God for them.

Constant repetition of this prayer makes us insensitive of its beauty and its deep meaning. Worse; we go through life without appreciation of the awesome fact that every day we live is a gift from God, and that our so-called normal days are filled with countless miracles. This prayer should remind us of the miracles which are daily with us.

Life is so full and we are so busy with it that we pause to remark only on the abnormal or the extraordinary event, and ignore the ordinary occurrences and the usual. But it is expected and the recurring events which reflect that which is truly miraculous. A bereaved father and mother and mother donated a beautiful stained glass window in the synagogue in affectionate memory of their son who was killed in the war. During the service of consecration another mother whispered to her husband, "Let's dot the same and give something in honour of our son". The husband seemed shocked, "What do you mean?" he asked "Our boy is still alive!" "Of course, he is", replied the mother "That's what I mean. Let's show our thankfulness that he came home safe and well". That mother understood the meaning of our prayer.

Our thoughts are frequently disturbed by considerations of the amount of illness which exists. But do we stop to think of the greater amount of good health that exists? The Talmud tells us that the daily healing of the sick is greater than the miracle of the men who went through the fiery furnace. The latter is recorded once only while the healing of the sick takes place continuously.

The family motto of Moses Montefiore was "Think and Thank." When we take time to think, we realise that our lives contain countless miracles of survival. We cross a busy thoroughfare and arrive safely on the other side. We travel in aeroplanes and drive in motor-cars. The food we eat and the water we drink — all of it is part of the great miracle of existence. For Life with all its imponderables, its hazards and its mystery is itself a miracle from first to last. The truly religious person feels the truth of this and therefore brings himself to thank God.

CANADIAN PANORAMA

By Mordecai Hirshenson

PRONOUNCING "MENUHIN"

There seems to be considerable diversity in pronouncing the name of the violin virtuoso Yehudi Menuhin who performed in Toronto last week. Some call him "MENN-yuin" with the accent on the MENN. One local radio announcer accented Yehudi on the initial syllable which resulted in a weird sounding name.

Menuhin, as the violinist stated in an interview, is from the Hebrew m'nucha or m'nuha, meaning "peace, repose, relaxation". Like many other Hebrew abstract nouns of quality, it has been adopted as a woman's name (compare B'racha, blessing; Tovah, favour), and like many other Hebrew and Yiddish female given names, with the suffix, IN, added to its end, has been in turn adopted as a surname or family name, properly defined as a mentronymic. Other such metronymics are Rivkin from Rivka, Goldin from Golda, Tomarin from Tamar, Ziffkin from Zivia, Leikin from Leah, etc.

The proper pronuciation therefore is M'NOOHIN Or M'NOOCHIN with accent on the "OO". The letter E in the name is the unaccented Hebrew sheva or silent or slurred "e".

OTTAWA OBSERVED, 1913

Back in 1913, the Canadian Jewish Times (truly a treasure of Canadian Jewish historical chronicling) had an article on the Jewish community of Ottawa and a description of its condition. The author, who wrote under the pseudonym of "Him-Eni", did not spare his contemporaries and fellow townsmen, or their institutions though, when he saw something praiseworthy, he did not hesitate to say so.

"UNIMPORTANT INTELLECTUALLY"

In discussing the lack of political participation among Ottawa's Jews 50 years ago, he makes no apologies but says quite plainly:

"....Historically the Ottawa Jewish community has been either too insignificant numerically or too unimportant intellectually and socially, to produce men and women illustrious in the wider paths of national endeavour. The only time that a Jew held rank in the civil life of the capital was about nine years ago when Mr. S. Rosenthal was elected Alderman. He was appointed to this office for four years in succession."

Fortunately the "intellectual and social level" of the community must have risen since then (if that is any criterion of political success) as in recent years a Jew has been on the Board of Control and has even run for the mayoralty (Mr. San Berger, Q.C.).

Mr. Hin-Eni was not impressed by the appearance of the King Edward Avenue Synagogue (now the Jewish funeral center) He says:

"The interior is not remarkable for aesthetic magnificence; it has the same stereotyped elegance and refinement of all the larger synagogues."

SPLIT CRITICIZED

He admonishes the "Achvei Zion" — a breakaway group from the Men's Zionist Society:

"....perhaps we Jews have an inordinate fodness for more pr[illegible]ice-presidents and [illegible]mittees [illegible] encourage 'healthy rivalry' — for then there will be greater zeal and activity, and consequently greater ultimate benefit to the movements in general. This is specious reasoning which availed us little in the days of Vespasian and Titus. Such a policy makes for the dessipation instead of the concentration of energies...."

"YOUNG BOORS AMONG US"

"Hin-Eni" frowned on the frivolous activities of the Young Men's Hebrew Association:

"Founded somewhere about November 1911, this association has experienced the inevitable vicissitudes of an institution which has stable basis, and

"RELIGIOUS LAXITY"

Nowadays we think of Ottawa as a haven of Orthodoxy and religious traditionalism Half a century ago, either this was not so or (what is more likely) Hin-Eni had more exacting standards. He had a low opinion of the community's religious performance:

"The religious complexion of Ottawa Jewry is nominally orthodox; but in reality general laxity and religious indifference prevail as to the observance of even the cardinal doctrines of Judaism".

To emphasize his point, he continues as follows:

"What is really noticeable is the intellectual imbecility of the Jewish youth. There is too much evidence of superiority and arrogance".

SEES HOPE

However he finishes on a note of optimism:

"But on the whole Ottawa Jewry is a well-behaved and morally clean community and with a little more heed to our prophet's admonition... it many become a bulwark of Canadian Jewry".

Not all of "Hin-Eni's" comments, of course, were negative. He had much praise for the charitable works, for the early pioneers and for its Zionist activity. Lillian Freiman, then a young woman of 28, was chairman of the King Edward Synagogue's Ladies Auxiliary. Her husband's business was then known as "A. J. Freiman Canadian House Furnisher". The expansion to the present department store had not yet taken place.

Torontonians in Los Angeles

Dear Editor:

The city of Toronto is well represented and very popular in the Jewish community of Los Angeles, thanks to the Toronto-Los Angeles Social Club. This group started with a handful of Torontonians seventeen years ago. It now has close to one-hundred members.

Over $14,000 was raised by them for the City of Hope, a non sectarian hospital specializing in lukemia and cancer research. Donations also are made to various other charities.

Besides a regular monthly meeting, there is a monthly social in addition to family celebrations.

The last event was a 25th anniversary surprise party Edward Katz had for his wife Frances. Both are outstanding members and active in Jewish Communal activities. Among the 130 guests who attended were Rabbi and Mrs. Samuel Sacks, formerly of Toronto.

Though the club's membership is comprised of more than 90% Torontonians, it is open to all couples between the ages of 35 to 55. A bowling league now is in its second year.

It is hoped that, when in Los Angeles, Torontonians will visit our new club rooms at the Workmen's Circle Hall, 1619 S. Robertson Blvd. Los Angeles, Calif.

THEATRE - MUSIC - FILM

by D. COHN

● In Alma-Ata, the capital of the Soviet Republic of Kozakhstan and a city of half-a-million people, the buxom blonde on the stage sang a Yiddish song about wartime in the Cracow ghetto. The women in the audience dabbed their eyes and then, embarrassed at having cried, smiled at their husbands. About 500 members of the small Jewish community, deep in Central Asia, had come to the concert hall on Pushkin Street to hear Rosalia Golubeva from Leningrad sing Yiddish folk songs.

Many of the listeners knew the songs and anticipated their favorite passages with little exclamations of joy and sorrow. The mood of the gathering was warm, gentle and cozy. Most of those who had come were middleaged or elderly couples. Here and there a parent whispered a running translation into the ear of a son or daughter who had lost the knowledge of Yiddish. An old woman, gesturing toward a group of young people, happily told her husband: "There, you see. I told you. You said there wouldn't be any youngsters".

● Groucho Marx has T. S. Eliot as a pen pal. The latter asked for a picture, one with a cigar. Then he asked Groucho to dinner. "London", says Groucho, "is a long way to go for a dinner. Maybe after I write him again, I'll be asked to lunch, too".

● Tab Hunter will play a persecuted Jewish boy in an "Arrest and Trial" TV episode.

● Composers and musicians are eager for violins made by Mrs. Carleen Maley Hutchins, a New Jersey USA, housewife. In her tiny acoustical testing chamber, whose ceiling is reinforced with six inches of poured concrete and whose walls are hung with velvet drapes and monk's cloth, she tests the resonance of the wood in her violins. Her last one, she says, is "an experimental violin — the most experimental to date. And it will be called either the treble violin or the violin in high G, because it is tuned an octave higher than normal violins".

As one of the seven original members of the Catgut Acoustical Society, Mrs. Hutchins works closely with physicists, chemists and musicians who are using today's scientific knowledge in trying to emulate the excellence of the best stringed instruments of the past, and to expand the string range for the new sounds of contemporary music.

Mrs. Hutchins has made 62 stringed instruments in the last 15 years while managing a household for her chemist husband and two teen-age children. She has received two Guggenheim Fellowships for research on and making experimental stringed instruments.

It takes her about 300 hours to make a violin or viola and twice that time for a large bass. Working on several instruments simultaneously, Mrs. Hutchins moves around her house for various phases of the job.

In her spacious backyard or on the large lyre-shaped kitchen table she built herself ("a Strad curve on one side, Gasparo do Salo on the other"), Mrs. Hutchins planes the sitka spruce for the body of the instrument. In her basement workroom she makes patterns, saws wood, works her drill press and sanding machine, glues the pieces together and varnishes the instrument. In the acoustical chamber she test her work. She saves the work one the scrolls for visits to her home in New Hamsphire where she can look at the sunset while carving the wood on her lap.

● Eddie Fisher refused to work on Yom Kippur at the Desert Inn, Las Vegas. But he worked elsewhere — he sang Kol Nidre at a Vegas synagogue.

Shoshan Comes To Toronto

Shoshana Shoshan of Israel will be the featured artist at the Farband Jubilee Israeli Concert, starring Richard Tucker, at the O'KEEFE CENTRE on Sunday, November 17th, 8 p.m.

Miss Shoshan attracted the music world's attention when she made her operatic debut as the leading soprano of the Israel National Opera in Tel Aviv. Her outstanding performances won unanimous rave notices from the critics. This success was immediately followed by a series of concert and radio appearances which rocketed her to national prominence.

The Metropolitan Opera Star, Jan Peerce, on a concert tour of Israel, heard Miss Shoshan sing and encouraged her to come to America, where she now has "permanent residence".

On her arrival in New York, she made appearances on the major television network shows. The United States and Canada responded to her talent and beauty with demands for personal appearances.

An interesting aspect of Shoshana Shoshan's career is that, while being recognized as an operatic soloist, she is sought after by colleges and universities as being a leading interpreter of her native Israeli art and folk songs, because of her insistence on singing them authentically and with musical integrity.

Miss Shoshan has appeared with Ed Sullivan and Edward G. Robinson at the "Night of Stars" Show before 18,000 people at Madison Square Gardens. Other appearances include: Soloist with the Symphony of the Air at Carnegie Hall; Soloist with the New York Philharmonic Orchestra at Town Hall and at Constitution Hall, Washington.

● For the second time, Toronto's O'Keefe Center will present The Sound of Music beginning Mon., November 11th, for two weeks, matinees on Wednesdays and Saturdays. And, after one day, the box office admits that tickets are nearly sold out.

The Sound of Music is the last of the team of Rodgers and Hammerstein, for the latter died soon afterwards. The work marks the first time that Mr. Rodgers has written music with a liturgical motif. Many songs are familiar to theater-goers: The Sound of Music, Marie, My Favorite Things, Do Re Mi, You Are Sixteen, The Lonely Goatherd, How Can Love Survive, So Long, Farewell, Climb Every Mountain, No Way To Stop It. Robert Russell Bennett worked the orchestrations.

The musical, written by Howard Lindsay and Russel Crouse and adapted from the story by Maria Augusta Trapp, is a winning show, performed with both skill and zest.

FAMILIAR REFRAIN — Barbara Meister, who, as Maria, appears in the Rodgers and Hammerstein musical, The Sound Of Music, in its return engagement at Toronto's O'Keefe Centre for two weeks, starting November 11th.

DR. PLAUT'S BRILLIANT BOOK

Dr. Bertram W. Korn, senior rabbi of Keneseth Israel Congregation, Philadelphia, published a laudatory review of Dr. W. Gunther Plaut's recent book. Dr. Korn is the author of American Jewry & the Civil War In his review Dr. Korn states i.e.:

"I will break precedent by recommending a brillant new book by my colleague Rabbi W. Gunther Plaut of the Holy Blossom Temple in Toronto, "The Rise of Reform Judaism: A Sourcebook of its European Origins."

Never before has this kind of book been available, a collection of excerpts from sermons and addresses, of passages from journals and prayer-books, and of discussions on the floor of the famous rabbinical conferences of Central Europe.

Suddenly everything we have taken for granted in the Reform congregation of our time is in jeopardy; suddenly everything is challenged, weighed, evaluated, debated. It is as though, through Rabbi Plaut's judicious selections, we ourselves had painfully to face up to the obscuranism and hyper-traditionalism of the late 18th and early 19th centuries, recognize our responsibility to revive Judaism, struggle against the almost overwhelming power, the dead-weight of encrusted custom and create anew a relevant fath and dynamic practice still related to the essence of the tradition. It was easy in those days to turn renegade, to pay lip service to the dominant faith, and abandon the good of the old Judaism along with the useless. It was hard to combat both the temptations of assimilationism and the attack of the nay-sayers who believed that "whatever is new is forbidden." Yet this is what was accomplished successfully.

Members of Keneseth Israel will gain a new respect for what we are and what we have built through a reading of this volume which emphasizes the courage, the creativity and the integrity of those who founded and fostered our movement. The book itself, incidentally, might have been over-heavy, formidable; but fortunately, most of Rabbi Plaut's selections are brief, apposite and telling. His style is light and informative, and the organization is so helpful that the reader is swept along from one theme to another. Among the topics are reforms in the prayer book, the observance of the Sabbath and holidays, Jewish education, theological problems such as revelation and messianism, the earliest Reform congregations, and the great controversies between Reform and Orthodoxy.

Rabbi Plaut is to be congratulated on a notable contribution to the literature of our movement; those who want to know something of the soul-searching and controversy which went into the creation of Reform Judaism are urged to begin (then they will want to finish) this volume; and the World Union for Progressive Judaism is to be commended on this significant event in publishing history — its first book.

TIME WAS...

By RUTHIE

Whether long ago or not so long ago, at some time or other we glance back and ponder the past. And, comical or sad, this gesture is invariably accompanied by a long-drawn ziffts (sigh).

The other day, the thought suddenly assailed me while I was grating onions:

"What would my friends of once-upon-a-time think were they to see me now?"

Not that grating onions for a potato kugel is unusual. It's just that the contrast is so marked — imagine comparing any household chore with the aspirations, the dreams of a teenager!

* * *

While rummaging through the contents of an old trunk, one of my children found my high school year-book. Immediately she began with the needles:

"Mom, look at the date! Gee, you're old."

"So do I have to be reminded?"

We leafed through the pages. When we came to the pictures of the graduating class, my callous offspring shouted:

"Gosh, look at those hairdos! Is that the way you wore your hair in the olden days?"

And when she scrutinized the boys — well, I thought she'd die laughing.

Frankly, it seems odd to me too. Did we really look like that?

* * *

What intrigued me most were the sayings and predictions beside each photograph. I wonder how many prophecies were fulfilled.

For example, there's Philip Kassier: Don't show your ignorance.

Was he dumb in school? I bet he turned out to be, maybe, a successful attorney.

William Klein: He stays home two days a week to let the class catch up with him.

He most likely is a school teacher and rules his class with an iron hand.

Marion Lampert: We bet she'll apologize when she reaches for her diploma.

By now she has lost her shyness and probably has a dozen kids.

Harry Lerner: Only he and God can be right.

Is he a rabbi?

Samuel Medoff: One of teacher's pets, but our pest.

Isn't there always one?

Marjan Rokicki: Well! I'm graduating, but no teacher ever pronounced my name correctly.

Anyway, variety's the spice of life.

Sadie Sass: Ginger ale or sass? We'll take ginger ale.

How corny can you get?

Morton Stang: The boy with the pompadour and wasp waist.

So what? His brother is TV comedian, Arnold Stang.

Dena Glanz: 100% temperamental — 98% temper; 2% mental.

Maybe she felt justified in histrionics. Papa is the well known Yiddish journalist.

Yes, and here enters that bit of sadness. Mrs. Edna Weinstein (nee Chess) died five years ago.

* * *

And what about Ruthie?

"What shall I be" — not a poet!

Okay, okay, I don't write poetry. But I write Ruthie, peel potatoes, grate onions, raise a family, go to luncheons, attend teas, drag my husband to the movies, yell my lungs out for my children to practice the piano — and am very happy.

DIEF AT BAR ILAN — The Hon. John Diefenbaker, former prime minister and leader of the opposition, accompanied by Mr. Mordecai Stern, the managing director of Rassab, at a reception held in Mr. Diefenbaker's honour at the Bar-Ilan University, of which Mr. Stern is a member of the board of governors. Mr. Diefenbaker recently toured the Middle East.

Women Mobilize To Help Plan Community Aid

The President's Council of the Federation of Jewish Women's Organizations of Toronto "promises to become one of the most influential groups in the Toronto Jewish community," it was reported last week by Mrs. Mark A. Levy, FJWO president, following the Council's opening meeting.

"The presidents of the major Jewish women's organizations in Toronto have responded to the challenge of co-operative community planning offered by the Presidents' Council," Mrs. Levy added. "I am certain the Council will be an important step toward better co-ordination of women's activities and improved understanding of community needs."

COMMON GOALS UNDERSCORED

The Council meeting preceded the fourth annual open board meeting of the Federation of Jewish Women's Organizations.

Mrs. Harold Lorie, immediate past president of the FJWO, in a statement inaugurating the President's Council, said i.e.:

"I think that we as Canadian-Jewish women are acknowledging in a positive way that we have common goals and purposes — that we are all trying to fulfill the teachings of our Jewish heritage and that we recognize, despite different ideological and service orientations throughout all of our organizations, there is mutual concern for the total community."

STRESSES SOCIAL RESPONSIBILITY

The Rev. Dr. Emlyn Davies, a noted clergyman and member of the Board of Broadcast Governors, who was the main speaker at the annual meeting, said the Judeo - Christian tradition has always answered "yes," to the question, Am I my brother's keeper? and must continued to do so.

The question of social responsibility becomes even more pronounced in Toronto, where there are so many newcomers and in Canada generally because it is a pluralistic society, he stated. Dr. Davies pointed out that Jews and Christians have similar traditions of social responsibility and that the picture of society which emerges from early documents common to the two traditions is one in which economic justice and social harmony prevailed.

TO DIRECT HAMILTON COUNCIL: William I. Stern who recently was appointed executive director of the Council of Jewish Organizations of Hamilton, according to Dan Vertlieb, president of the Hamilton Council. Mr. Stern is responsible for directing the central Jewish fund campaign, supervising the staff of the Hamilton YM-YWHA and the family service agency, and co-ordinating social planning activities.

CJC CALLS UPON CANADIANS TO REMEMBER CRYSTAL NIGHT

The Canadian Jewish Congress issued the following statement:

The Canadian Jewish Congress calls upon the Jews of Canada to mark November 10, 1963, the 25th anniversary of Kristallnacht. Crystal night was the night when bands of German civilians, encouraged by the Hitler government roamed the cities of Germany and other Central European countries, breaking Jewish shop windows and looting merchandise.

It was the night when synagogues were destroyed, Torah scrolls and other sacred Jewish books burned in public bonfires and Jews sent to concentration camps.

These events are etched in the memory of survivors who are now Canadian citizens. The "final solution" for the Jewish people — the extermination centres — was to come later, but this was the first unleashing of Nazi fury on a wide scale.

The Congress urges the synagogues of the Canadian community to designate the Sabbath of November 9 as a day for the rememberance of Kristallnacht and requests the rabbis to devote their sermons to this theme.

It asks that principals and teachers of Hebrew schools bring this chapter in the history of the Jewish people to the attention of their pupils so that they might remember the martyrs and learn to cherish the Canadian society which enables them to live and wok as free citizens.

In Toronto a Kristallnacht memorial service, arranged congregation Habonim, will be held at Holy Blossom Temple on Sunday, November 10, at 2 p.m., in which will participate this city's rabbis who originated in Central Europe, the Congress and representatives of Christian denominations.

On this day, following the service, Congregation Habonim will break ground for its Kristallnacht memorial synagogue centre, appropriately signifying that the people and culture, which the Nazis sought to destroy, live on in the land of the free.

LAMONTAGNE TO SPEAK

The Hon. Maurice Lamontagne, president of the Queen's Privy Souncil of Canada, will address the closing session of the forthcoming Eastern Region Conference of Canadian Jewish Congress to be held at the Windsor Hotel, Montreal, on December 1st.

Mr. Lamontagne will be introduced by Samuel Bronfman, chairman of Congress Board of Governors, and will speak on "Biculturalism in Canada." The meeting will be chaired by Michael Garber, Q.C., president of Congress.

Several hundred delegates representng all major Jewish organizations in Montreal, Quebec, Three Rivers and Sherbrooke are expected to attend the day-long conference.

MONTAGU SENSATION; ADMITS IS NOT ORTHODOX

London, November 1, 1963. (JCNS) A former United Synagogue president and chairman of the Chief Rabbinate Council, the Hon. Ewen E. S. Montagu, Q.C. frankly admitted that he is not Orthodox. And he maintained that one of his predecessors, Sir Robert Waley Cohen, also was not Orthodox.

Mr. Montagu was answering a suestion at a brains trust organised by the Anglo-Jewish Association at the St. John's Wood Synagogue communal centre, London.

The panel was asked why people who are not strictly Orthodox allowed themselves to be elected to high office in synagogal and other Orthodox organisations.

Saying that the question was "nicely aimed at me", Mr. Montagu claimed that everyone knew his views. He had accepted the high office out of a sense of duty to the community. Whatever one's personal views on the dietary laws and the keeping of the Sabath, he said, he did not feel that anyone could complain as long as those who were so elected had the requisite qualifications and experience to ensure that the organisation was soundly and properly administered.

CANADIAN WOMEN TO MEET IN WINNIPEG; WILL HOLD INSTITUTE

At a four-day session in Toronto of national leaders of the National Council of Jewish Women of Canada, plans were made for a community services training institute to help implement two major nation-wide projects.

The institute will be held from January 27th to 30th in Winnipeg. It will lay the groundwork for one project envisioning the establishment of non-sectarian senior citizens placement bureaus across the country and another aimed at stimulating children in deprived or slum areas to seek higher education.

About 60 volunteer workers, representing 15 NCJW sections from Vancouver to Quebec City, will attend the institute where they will receive intensive training with the aid of consultant Dr. Pers Stensland, director of research utilization, center of community studies, University of Saskatchewan, on how a volunteer organization can implement such ambiious community projects.

Gropper of Saskatoon; Mrs. David Kline of Edmonton; Mrs. David Kovitz of Calgary; Mrs. Philip Vinegerg and Mrs. Moe Richler of Montreal; Mrs. Abe Hollenberg and Mrs. Victor Rosenfield of Winnipeg Mrs. M. ARGENTINA: YIDDISH ON DECLINE

Buenos Aires, (JCNS) — Much has been said and written about Argenine Jewry as a bulwark of Yiddish. Lately, however, the situation has been deteriorating visibly.

The Jewish Book Fair, organised each year by the A.M.I.A. (the Buenos Aires Ashkenazi community) may give an idea of this decline.

Last year 17,838 books were sold at the Fair, out of which 4,383 (24,57 per cent) were in Yiddish, 2,355 (13.2 per cent) were in Hebrew and 11,100 (62.23 per cent) in Spanish.

This year, of a total of 20,500 volumes sold, only 2,994 (14.6 per cent) were in Yiddish, against 2,510 (12.24 per cent) in Hebrew and 14,996 (73.16 per cent) in Spanish.

TORONTO'S PERETZ SCHOOL GROWS

In its 53rd consecutive year, the Workmen's Circle Peretz School, Toronto's longest existent Jewish secular school, still is in the forefront in the development of the future Jewish generations.

A wing of the Workmen's Circle, the Arbeiter Ring, the Peretz School consists of six classes plus a kindergarten, a mittel-shule, music instruction and special course in bar mitzvah training. Children find Jewish self-expression in the Youth Clubs. Parents are included in the many problems and programs by means of their participation in the PTA. Text books in use include those regularly issued by the Arbeiter Ring Publishing Company, recognized for their excellence and used in other schools.

The Shule covers a wide diversity of subjects: Yiddish language; Yiddish literature; Jewish History; Jewish traditions and holidays; Jewish music; bar mitzvah instruction; Hebrew language.

Jewish history includes current events. The contemporary problems of world Jewry (Israel, North and South America, etc.) are explained in depth and discussed so as to ensure a greater understanding and ingrain an association between the children and their people.

Through kindergarten to the Mittle-Shule and into useful membership of Jewish society, the Peretz Shule broadens the horizons of Jewish thought by introspection and definition.

Principal is Mrs. Manya Reinhartz: teachers are Mrs. Feningstien, Mrs. Zoltek, Mr. A. Reinhartz, Mrs. Kissin, Mrs. Feigel Gartner, Mrs. H. Reinhartz.

The literary side is wholly ignored. Our young men seem to have no wish to acquire knowledge, and our young ladies seem to demand of them no more than to know how to dance.... GERMANY SECOND BEST COSTUMER

Tel Aviv, (JCNS) — A Citrus Marketing Board delegation has concluded an agreement with West German importers, under which they would buy three million cases of citrus — out of a total expected crop of 13 million cases.

This will make West Germany Israel's second biggest customer for citrus, after Britain, which buys close on four million cases a year. Last year West Germany bought two and a half million cases.

Shapiro Appeals To Neturei Karta

Tel Aviv, (JCNS) — Mr. Moshe Shapiro, the N.R.P. Minister of the Interior, last night appealed to Neturei Karta to end their methods of fighting for Sabbath observance — methods "which do more harm to religious Jewry than to those who desecrate it."

His appeal was part of a speech made before more than 500 delegates attending the National Conference of the National Religious Party women's section held here last night.

Stressing that the enemies of Israel and the Jewish people could be found only tens of yards from the Mandelbaum Gate, he stated that his party would do "everything possible to seek ways of establishing peace between Jew and Jew."

LARGE FAMILIES ARE IN STYLE

According to the experts on U.S.A. Jewish statistics, the Jewish birth rate is lower than that of white Catholics "and" Protestants. In fact, they submit that American Jews do not fully replace themselves.

As statistical data about American religious and ethnic groups are guess work, as has frequently been pointed out, many observers of Jewish suburbia wonder whether the statisticians have kept abreast of the population explosion among Jewish couples married in the past ten or 15 years.

Speaking on the strength of personal observation, I know that the four-children family is the norm among Jewish couples under 35. Five-children families are by no means rare and I have frequently admired mothers of six young children who are active in adult Jewish education.

Dr. and Mrs. Daniel Thursz recently announced the arrival of their fourth child by giving notice that since they had run out of "D" names (the first three Thursz children are named Debby, Daniel and Deena), they are starting "a new series". Dr. Thursz, a member of the national education staff of the B'nai B'rith Young Organisation, is Associate Professor of Social Work at the University of Maryland School of Social Work. Like most couples in their age group, the Thurszes are "family oriented" and regard a large family as the most meaningful personal fulfilment.

Psychologists have pointed out that the "willed" population explosion is a reaction to the thermonuclear threat of destruction — the assertion of the will for life "vis-à-vis" death. Whatever the motivations of the Thurszes' "starting a new series" may be, it augurs well for the Jewish future because there are hundreds of thousands of Jewish couples in North America who, after running out of names for a "first series" of three children, start a "second series."

FROM THE PULPIT TO HOLLYWOOD

Rabbi Herbert Tarr graduated from Cincinnati's Hebrew Union College, was drafted by his "alma mater" for the chaplaincy, served his two-year stint in the air force and, after a short stay with a—Buffalo Reform Temple, was elected as the spiritual leader of the Community Reform Temple in Westbury on Long Island.

A bachelor, Rabbi Tarr used his leisure hours for writing sort of an autobiographical novel, "The Conversion of Chaplain Cohen." Humorous and hard-boiled, as well as "sentimental," the book is considered "a natural" for the screen and Samuel Engel, the noted Hollywood producer, is now filming it "as a major production."

Rabbi Tarr has resigned from his pulpit and is now in Hollywood. Like many young men who graduates in English and creative writing, he has quite a collection of unpublished stories and plays. Encouraged by the success of his first novel, he recently dusted off one of his plays, which is to be produced on Broadway next year under the title of "The New Frontier."

The American rabbinate has seen quite a few of its members attain national prominence, but invariably in more traditionally sedate and theological endeavours than a Hollywood screenwriter and a Broadway playwright. Mr. Engel thinks "Chaplain Cohen" will project the kind of rabbinic image that is genuine and conducive to respect for Jews and their spiritual leader. It will introduce the American Rabbi to hundreds of towns without Jews and, Mr. Engel promises, it will be a good and memorable film.

In the meantime, Rabbi Tarr has become a minor sensation. According to his publishers, "The Conversion of Chaplain Cohen" has sold about 25,000 copies since June 10, which means that it is far from being a best selier. But, then, which book by a rabbi, with the exception of the late Rabbi Joshua Liebman's "Peace of Mind", has met with such success?

With the exception of Salinger's latest novel, no volume about Jews — fiction or non-fiction — has made the best-seller lists in the past year. However, almost Jewish characters and quite every other novel has a few a number of Jews as central characters.

"Jews are still in style", the editor of a large and important publishing house told me the other day. But, he added, "they are being taken for granted. A Jew, here and there, is almost 'de rigueur', according to this expert."

Professor Judah A. Joffe, the distinguished Yiddish lexicographer and philologist received many honours on his 90th birthday, among them an honorary doctor's degree of the Jewish Theological Seminary of America.

As editor of the "Great Yiddish Dictionary," the second volume of which is now in preparation, Professor Joffe continues to carry a burden of work which even a man half his age might find onerous.

A native of Bakhmut, Russia, Judah Joffe came to New York in 1891 where he studied classical philology and Indo-European languages at Columbia University. With this background and a great love for Yiddish, he raised Yiddish philology to the status of an academic speciality. Judah Joffe, a many-sided genius, is the only American Jewish scholar with over 70 years' service — and still serving with distinction.
